

Instructor: Date:

Learner: Regional Branch:

Program: Center:

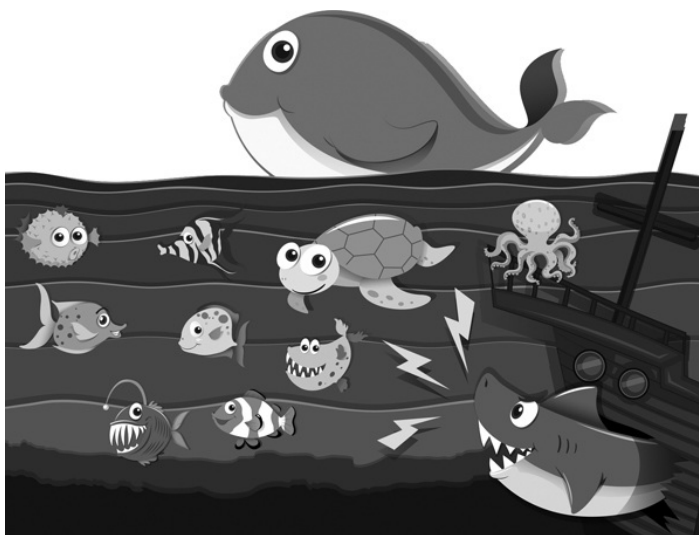

CONTENT

- Let's Start! • Let's Explore! • Let's Practice! • Extension Activity • Target Words • Learning Points

Let's Start!

Let's review!

Learning Outcome

Analyze issues relating to different topics and their solution in written and spoken situations according to work and social contexts.

Can Do Statements

- I can talk about things that have happened.
- I can report facts about events and actions.
- I can speculate about past events.

Ask your partner:

- Would you like to be an investigator?
Why or why not?
- What are some of the problems with doing an investigation under the sea?

Let's Explore!

We located The Explorer!

* "The Explorer" was the name of a ship.

Instructions: Read the text aloud.

I remember a particularly interesting dive that I was hired to do with two other divers whose names I have forgotten since then. We were flown to St. Kitts, which is a tiny island, with all our diving gear, and whatever else was needed. It took us three days to locate the shipwreck of "The Explorer". When we started on the third day of diving we were in raging waters trying to find out what had caused the ship to sink. The insurance claim on the ship might have been a fraud. When we examined the ship, we began to think it must have been sunk on purpose.

We understood that the owner of the ship, who was a man in his fifties, had recently been divorced and needed to pay child support. He must have needed more money we concluded. One bit of evidence that convinced us was that there was no cargo aboard the ship. If there had been, we might have believed it was an accident.

Aboard the ship everything was pristine except where the hull meets the waterline there was a large hole which on first glance could have been made by crashing into a rock. It was hard to decipher because the sea was rough. However, on closer inspection, it was apparent that at the edge of the hole there were drill marks that could only have been made for the purpose of sinking the ship. The suspicion was confirmed!

That was lucky because as we were ascending we felt a tremor. It dawned on me that we were experiencing an earthquake. When we surfaced, it was raining heavily. We had to get ashore and take cover. Luckily, it was a mild earthquake that only measured 4 on the Richter scale. It could have been much worse. For years I have wanted to go back to diving, but I've already been awarded with a badge for recovering the Titanic. I've often thought that nothing will beat that experience.

Let's Practice!

Dave speculates about the reason why the ship sank.

Instructions: Use the words from the Word Bank to correctly complete each sentences. Read the sentences aloud.

Word Bank

must have needed more might have been might have believed
must have been sunk could have been much

1. The insurance claim on the ship _____ a fraud.
2. When we examined the ship we began to think it _____ on purpose.
3. If there had been cargo, we _____ it was an accident.
4. It _____ worse.
5. He _____ money, we concluded.

Let's Practice!

Dave solves the mystery surrounding the shipwreck.

Instructions: Complete the sentence by circling the correct answer.

1. The owner of the ship had recently been divorced / has been recently divorce / is divorced recently and needed to pay child support.
2. There were drill marks that could only have been made / has been made / been made for the purpose of sinking the ship.
3. I remember a particularly interesting dive that I was hired to do with two other divers whose names I forgot / have forgotten / haven't forget since then.
4. For years I have want / wanted / have wanted to go back to diving, but I've already been awarded with a badge for recovering the Titanic.
5. I have often thought / often have thought / have thought often that nothing will beat that experience.

Extension Activity

Watch a video on diving to explore a shipwreck.

Instructions: Complete the following steps. Fill in the Self-Assessment.

- Find a video on diving to explore a shipwreck.
- Watch the video and pick out and write down key vocabulary.
- Look up any new words.
- Write a summary (200 words) in your own words reporting the facts about the shipwreck using at least 5 new vocabulary words.
- Read your text aloud.

Self-Assessment

Yes No

I watch a video about things that happened.

☐ ☐

I write down new vocabulary.

☐ ☐

I learn the definitions of the new vocabulary.

☐ ☐

I write a summary about things that happened.

☐ ☐

I write and report about the facts.

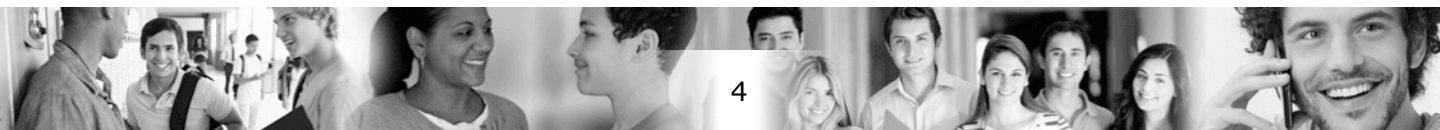

☐ ☐

I read my summary aloud.

☐ ☐

Target Words

- shipwreck (noun): destruction or sinking of a ship
e.g. It took us three days to locate the shipwreck of "The Explorer".
- raging (adjective): very strong or violent e.g. When we started on the third day of diving, we were in raging waters.
- cargo (noun): goods carried by a ship, train or other vehicle e.g. There was no cargo aboard the ship.
- apparent (adjective): able to be seen or understood
e.g. It was apparent that at the edge of the hole there were drill marks.
- tremor (noun): a slight earthquake
e.g. That was lucky because as we were ascending, we felt a tremor.
- to dawn on (verb): to slowly be made aware
e.g. It dawned on me that we were experiencing an earthquake.
- earthquake (noun): a sudden, violent movement of the earth's surface
e.g. It dawned on me that we were experiencing an earthquake.
- heavily (adjective): with great amount or force
e.g. When we surfaced, it was raining heavily.
- Richter scale (noun): a system that uses a scale from 1 to 10 to measure the severity of an earthquake e.g. Luckily it was a mild earthquake that only measured 4 on the Richter scale.
- to take cover (expression): to protect oneself by ducking down into or under a shelter e.g. We had to get ashore and take cover.

Learning Points

Present Perfect: Review

Let's review the Present Perfect tense.

You use the Present Perfect to:

1. Talk about recent events, with no definite time

For example:

We have just bought a new car.

1. Talk about events that happened at some unknown or unmentioned time in the past

For example:

I have been to Cuba three times.

1. Talk about past events that have a connection to the present

For example:

I don't want to see that movie. I've already seen it.

1. Talk about things which began in the past and are still true

For example:

I have lived here for ten years.

1. Talk about a habitual action that has been occurring frequently up to the present

For example:

I have been working out recently.

There are certain time words you use with the Present Perfect. Look at the chart for a summary of the most common ones:

Learning Points

Word	Use	Example
For	In sentences that describe something that has happened for a duration of time.	I have lived at my current address for seven years.
Since	In sentences that describe something that has happened since a fixed period in time.	I have lived at my current address since 2008.
Yet	In questions and negative statements.	I haven't taken out the trash yet.
Already Often	In sentences that talk about actions that started in the past but have a present impact.	I have already taken out the trash.
Still	In negative sentences.	I still haven't taken out the trash.

Examples:

- For years I have wanted to go back to diving, but I've already been awarded with a badge for recovering the Titanic.
- I've often thought that nothing will beat that experience.

Relative Clauses: Review

You use relative clauses to give extra information about someone or something. By combining sentences using relative clauses, your text becomes less repetitive and more concise.

There are two types of relative clauses: "Defining" and "Non-Defining".

Defining Relative Clauses:

A "Defining Relative Clause" tells you which specific person or thing you are talking about.

For example:

The kid who delivers the newspaper wanted a tip.
 The newspaper which the kid delivers is called "The Times".
 The bike that he rides is red.

Non-Defining Relative Clauses:

A "Non-Defining Relative Clause" tells you extra information regarding the person or thing you are talking about. This information is usually not essential.

Learning Points

The chart below outlines the main relative pronouns, and details how they can be used to form relative clauses.

Relative Pronoun	Refers to ...	Example
who	people	I told you about the man who lives on the moon.
which	animals or things	Did you see the book which was on the table?
whose	possessions	I know a guy whose brother works at the circus.
whom	people in the object position	I ran into the doctor whom I met at my last check up.
that	people, animals or things (replaces who or which)	I told you about the man that lives on the moon. Did you see the book that was on the table?
whatever	anything or it doesn't really matter	I'm sure I'll enjoy eating whatever you make.
whoever	the person or group who/ any person or group	Whoever wins will go on to play Spain in the final.
whichever	one thing or person from a limited number	Whichever one of you broke the vase will have to replace it.

Examples:

- I have been on many dives, but I remember a particularly interesting dive that I was hired to do.
- We were flown to St. Kitts with all our diving gear and whatever else was needed.
- The owner of the ship, who was a man in his fifties, had recently been divorced .
- There was a large hole which on first glance could have been made by crashing into a rock.
- I was hired to work with two other divers whose names I have forgotten.
- We were flown to St. Kitts, which is a tiny island.

